Working Horn.

It is often the case that amateurs would like to make some use of bandsome horns, but from the rigid and obstinate nature of the material are wable to do so. A simple process carefully followed out would enable any one to make beautiful and useful articles. The inner eart of the horn is scraped out, then it is thrown into water and boiled for an hour or so, when becomes soft. It is then held in the flame of a wood or coal fire, being constantly turned. It should be kept in the fire for some time, care being taken that it does not burn, and is frequently moistened by being dipped in boiling ter. The heat and steam will soften about the condition of molten lead. It is therefore very soft and can be split lengthwise by a strong knife and pinchers. It can then be cut late this avers by separating the sheets of which it is composed. By being pressed between dies it can be made to take almost any form. When the article is complete it can be scraped smooth. then given a high polish.

Snakes have their usefulness in the world. They are the scavengers of swamps and morasses where other animals of size are unable to penetrate or to exist. It is in the tropics of course that serpents chiefly abound. snakes are of tropical origin, but some species have spread into cooler latitudes. In very cold countries there are no snakes. Contrary to the popular belief, there are some snakes in Ireland, but they are very rare. The smallest serpents in the world are the "worm snakes" of the tropics. They are about as big as fair sized earthworms. Some snakes lay eggs, while others bring forth their young alive. In the latter category are vipers, rattlesnakes and nearly all water snakes. Pythons incubate their eggs after lay-Hindoo servants are the most imperturbable people in the world. You may throw one downstairs or pat him on the back. He accepts both with exactly the same expression of counter nance. The Indian's religion is at the bottom of all his acts, all his feelings. He eats, sleeps, moves and has his being according to religious formula, and his doctrine of reincarnation forms his whole philosophy of life. The fact that you are the master now is due to the fact that you have been the er ant in some previous reincarnation. He is the servant now, and the only chance for him to be reborn in the master's position is to learn all the lessons of his present incarnation. He takes everything philosophically. It is all a part of the day's work.

During the reign of Queen Elizabeth an Euglish gentleman of wealth named Corbet, of a distinguished family near Shrewsbury, bet that his leg was the handsomest in the country or kingdom and staked estates worth £80,000 on the subject. He won the wager, and a picture is still preserved in the family mansion representing the process of measuring the legs of the different
